

HOTEL FLAMINGO

HOTEL FLAMINGO

HOLIDAY HEAT WAVE

CARNIVAL CAPER

FABULOUS FEAST

Alex Milway

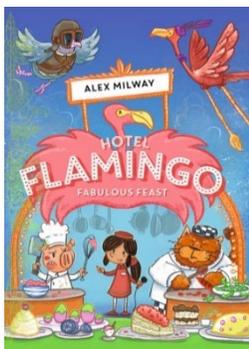

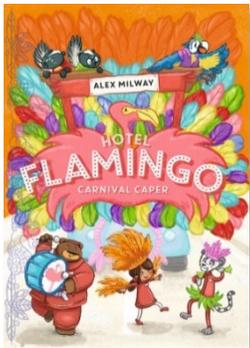

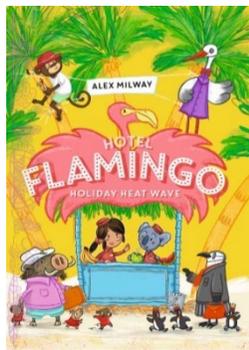

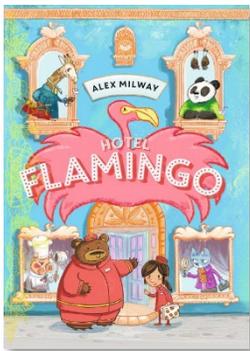

Paperback | Ages 6-9 | 5 x 7 ¼ | 192 pp | $5.99

Hotel ISBN: 978-1-68464-126-0 LOC: 2019953392 | Holiday ISBN: 978-1-68464-127-7 LOC: 2019953228

Carnival ISBN: 978-1-68464-128-4 LOC: 2019953229 | Feast ISBN: 978-1-68464-129-1 LOC: 2019953541

When Anna inherits a dilapidated once-grand hotel, she's determined to restore it to its former glory. But this is no ordinary hotel – all of her staff and guests are animals! And running an animal hotel is no easy task ...

- Irresistible two-color illustrations throughout.
- Filled with friendship, folly, and fantasy.
- Charming, quirky, and heartwarming.
- Cooperation, teamwork, ingenuity.

14
Sabotage

Stella pulled apart the messy ball of wiring with her hooves. Detailed, fiddly work such as wiring was not her strong point, but even she could see what was wrong.

"Someone's had a real go at this," she said.

"Oh yeah," Stella replied. "Whoever did this knew exactly what they were doing. They've cut through the wires, fusing the limply to the floor.

Thankfully, T Bear intervened. He placed his very firm paw on Mr. Sweet's arm and removed it from his friend. "Respect needs to be earned, Mr. Sweet," he said.

Anna could see that there would be trouble ahead.

cardwalks, monkeys, elephants . . . animals of all shapes and sizes.

"We really must get the revolving door working, Miss Anna," he said, lost amid a crowd of animals.

A giraffe, stooping to squeeze through the gap, raised her neck above everyone.

"I could fix it for you," she said loudly.

"Excuse me?" said Anna, peering up.

"The revolving door," said the giraffe. "I'm a handywoman. Stella's the name. I mend things."

T Bear looked hopefully at Anna, and made a gravelly-sounding whimper. She could tell it would make him very happy to have his door working again.

